STAKEHOLDER ENGAGEMENT OVERVIEW

4 total engagements this week, across 3 stakeholder types.

WEEKLY PROGRESS TREND (ALL INITIATIVES)

THIS WEEK'S OBJECTIVES

- 1 Strengthen technical integration with Belize's National Sport Federations through field visits, training observations, and direct engagement with coaches and federation leaders to gain a deeper understanding of their high-performance structures and development needs.

Expected result — Collect first-hand technical and organizational information to establish collaborative working relationships and build an initial diagnosis that will support future sport-specific development strategies.

Success indicator — Completion of technical visits, meetings with federation representatives and coaches, training observations, and establishment of ongoing communication channels for future collaboration.

- 2 Integrate the technical diagnosis of Belize's high-performance system with the preparation for both the Central American and Caribbean Games and the Commonwealth Games by linking field observations with the athletes and sports that will represent Belize in international competition.

Expected result — Obtain first-hand technical information on Belize's priority athletes and teams immediately before international competition, providing a stronger basis for subsequent performance evaluation and sport-specific planning.

Success indicator — Successful observation of the Belize Men's National Basketball Team during its final preparation phase before the Central American and Caribbean Games, and direct observation of Commonwealth Games athlete Nyasha Harris during her final week of training before competition.

- 3 Conduct technical monitoring of Belize's participation in the Central American and Caribbean Games and the Commonwealth Games to collect performance evidence for future athlete and federation evaluations.

Expected result — Document competition performances and key technical observations from Belizean athletes to support post-event discussions and future planning with the respective National Sport Federations.

Success indicator — Competition performances from Belizean athletes were systematically documented across both events, generating objective technical information to support future performance reviews and planning processes

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This week focused on strengthening technical integration with Belize's National Sport Federations through field visits, training observations, and direct engagement with federation leaders, coaches, and athletes. Technical visits were completed with Basketball, Athletics, and Table Tennis, while an initial approach was established with Volleyball, expanding the understanding of Belize's high-performance programmes. Preparation for the Central American and Caribbean Games and the Commonwealth Games was further strengthened by linking field observations with Belize's international delegation, including the opportunity to observe the Men's National Basketball Team and Commonwealth Games athlete Nyasha Harris during their final preparation phase before competition. Competition schedules were reviewed, technical observation priorities were established, and Belize's performances at both international events were continuously monitored to support future performance evaluation and planning. Continued coordination with the BOCGA regarding access during the Central American and Caribbean Games remains important to maximize technical observation opportunities.
