WEEKLY PROGRESS TREND (ALL INITIATIVES)

THIS WEEK'S OBJECTIVES

- 1 Provide individualized support to athletes and coaches preparing for or participating in the CAC Games, Cycling World Championships and other international competitions, with particular attention to training, recovery, competition logistics, equipment and emerging performance needs.

Expected result — Athletes and coaches receive timely, coordinated support that enables them to address performance and logistical challenges, make informed training and recovery decisions, and prepare effectively for upcoming competitions.

Success indicator — A check-in was conducted with the Cycling Association and athletes, focusing on high-performance cyclist Kohath Baron, who is preparing for the World Championships, and the developing athletes who recently attended a training camp in Trinidad and Tobago. The skills acquired by the developing cyclists during the training camp were reviewed, together with opportunities to apply and reinforce this learning in Dominica. A process was identified for assessing Kohath Baron's needs following each competition weekend in Italy, including his recovery, equipment, training and competition requirements as he prepares for the Canadian Championships and World Championships. The Capacity Officer followed up with the swimming coach after the CAC Games events and kept the Sport Methodologist informed of developments, including one athlete's difficulty with a turn, which affected the athlete's final time, and another athlete's health challenges. Support was provided to the boxing athletes regarding safe weight-management strategies, access to appropriate pre-competition training facilities, and arrangements for uniforms and competition equipment. Support was provided to the athletics coach in reviewing competition dates and coordinating the athletes' tapering, recovery and preparation following their participation in the School Games and their subsequent back-to-back participation in the CAC Games.

- 2 Support the Dominica Olympic Academy in establishing a structured approach for continued engagement with teachers who participated in the Olympic Values Education Programme (OVEP) workshop.

Expected result — The Olympic Academy defines appropriate forms of post-workshop engagement, assigns responsibilities and establishes a timeline for reconnecting with OVEP participants so that teachers can continue their development and remain involved in Olympic education and the activities of the Dominica Olympic Committee.

Success indicator — The Olympic Academy was encouraged to schedule a planning meeting to determine how it will engage OVEP participants and what forms of follow-up support and involvement will be offered. The Capacity Officer was updated on the Academy's ongoing activities and advised to encourage timely follow-up with the participating teachers. The importance of reconnecting with OVEP participants as soon as possible was emphasized to maintain the momentum generated by the workshop. The Academy was encouraged to keep the Dominica Olympic Committee informed of its engagement efforts, participant responses and planned follow-up activities. Continued participant development and opportunities for teachers to remain connected with the Olympic Academy and the wider work of the Dominica Olympic Committee were identified as key priorities.

- 3 Provide targeted methodological and organizational support to national federations not directly occupied with Games participation at the time, with an immediate focus on strengthening the athlete, coach and referee or official development systems of the Basketball, Volleyball and Cycling Associations.

Expected result — Basketball and Volleyball receive draft development pathways and workforce-management tools grounded in FIBA and FIVB best practices. Cycling is engaged through direct consultation with its leadership, coaches and athletes and is supported in identifying athlete needs and developing its pathway using relevant UCI and long-term development principles. The three federations are encouraged to review and adapt the resources developed by sport methodologists to Dominica's context while identifying gaps in athlete development, coaching capacity, referee or official qualifications and certification opportunities.

Success indicator — The Sport Methodologist and Local Sport Methodology Officer developed structured draft athlete-development pathways for Basketball and Volleyball. The basketball pathway draws on FIBA best practices, the Jr. NBA curriculum and long-term athlete development principles. The volleyball pathway draws on FIVB best practices and established long-term athlete development principles. Both pathways define the technical, tactical, physical and personal competencies athletes should progressively develop from childhood through the youth, young adult and high-performance levels. A meeting was held with Cycling President Mr. Ronald Charles, Coach Levi Baron and athletes Kohath Baron, Stephan Carbon and Ross Semper to discuss athlete development, high-performance preparation and the recent training-camp experience in Trinidad and Tobago. The Cycling athletes had an opportunity to describe the skills acquired during the camp, their current training and competition priorities, and the equipment repairs and bicycle adjustments they require. Follow-up priorities were identified for Kohath Baron, including assessment of his recovery, equipment, training and other support needs following each competition weekend in Italy as he prepares for the Canadian Championships and World Championships. As less work had been completed on the cycling development levels, the Cycling Association was asked to provide the technical competencies athletes should develop at each stage. The Association was also asked to help define the progressive education and qualification requirements for cycling coaches and officials or commissaires. Coach and referee or official databases were developed or prepared for federation input to verify active personnel, qualifications, certification levels, current roles and development needs. The federations were asked to update their High-Performance Athlete Databases, National Federation Databases and Multi-Cycle Operations, Shared Calendars and Participation Plans. Research and external consultation were initiated regarding coach, referee and official-development opportunities available through FIBA Americas, the FIVB, the UCI and relevant regional bodies. The Volleyball Association reported that national-team training had resumed. Basketball and Volleyball were encouraged to schedule executive meetings to review and validate their draft pathways. Cycling was asked to review the documents in its shared federation folder and participate in a follow-up meeting after providing the required technical information. All three federations were encouraged to identify additional coaches for the available Panam Sports online coach-education programme. Follow-up communication was prepared for the federation presidents outlining the work completed, outstanding documents and next steps relating to performance, high performance, operations and integrity.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Games-time and targeted support continued for CAC Boxing, Swimming and Athletics, addressing weigh-ins, weight management, schedules, training access, equipment, health, tapering and recovery. A Cycling debrief reviewed Trinidad camp learning, equipment needs and Kohath Baron's World Championships preparation. With the Local Sport Methodology Officer, FIBA/FIVB-based Basketball and Volleyball pathways and coach/referee databases were refined; Cycling was asked to supply technical input, and executive review meetings were requested. The Olympic Academy was urged to promptly define post-OVEP teacher engagement. An interview and review of the 2023–2026 Strategic Plan identified monitoring and implementation gaps and informed a proposed six-week close-out evaluation and successor-planning structure. Six connected projects were reviewed with the Capacity Officer. Government replies on cooperation and shared facilities remain pending; DOC decisions are also needed on strategic-plan leadership, the Marketing Strategy and redistribution of marketing responsibilities.
